COURSE LEADERS:

Jon Williams

Jon served for five years as Charity Commissioner and, more recently, for eight years as trustee and Vice Chair of the Association of Chairs.

Meg Wright

Meg is a consultant and interim CEO specialising in voluntary sector business, leadership and governance.

BEST PRACTICE REPORTING

In the current economic climate where fundraising from funders and the public alike is a tough ask, it is important that you sell your charity in the best possible light. We all know that funders will look at your statutory accounts and therefore they need to reflect well on your organisation to provide key messages in a way that encourages them to fund you. Our half day online course will give the tips on best practice reporting in the sector and show you how to think about your Trustees report differently.

CHARITIES SORP TRAINING SERIES

Are you ready for the changes to the 2026 Charities SORP?

The Charities SORP 2026 contains a number of important updates, including on lease accounting and revenue recognition. It also introduces a three-tier reporting system based on income. In addition, refreshed trustees annual report requirements, with further guidance added on how to report financial reserves and plans about the future.

To help you plan ahead and ensure your charity is ready for these changes, we are running a series of online training courses in partnership with BDO with each session focussing on a key aspect of the changes.
